

Sorts and Mingle

This game is a nice way of getting people to talk with one another and to get to know things about one another.

Materials Needed

A flip chart or Power point with questions

Set-Up

- Have participants stand up from their chairs and scatter across the room.
- Flip chart your questions one by one (i.e. on different pages). Pose the first question and let people sort and mingle. Once they are done, pose the next question.

Process

- Pose your first question. Ask people to walk around the room and cluster together with others that are in the same “category” as themselves.
- Questions to ask could include the following:
  - If you could be the best at something, what should it be?
  - What car was your favorite?
  - Your most favorite actor?
  - Your favorite dessert?
  - What chore did you like the least as child?
  - What’s your favorite sports team?
- Carry on to the next question and the next, until you feel the people have mingled enough.
